

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The system comprises the XML database that stores an electronic examination document, another database that stores attribute information of examiners and repliers for 5 examining the examination document, and the main controller which allows the examination requester to select the examiner or replier on the basis of the attribute information of examiners and repliers, and requesting examination of the examination document to the selected examiner or replier
10 through the Internet.